Home page basics

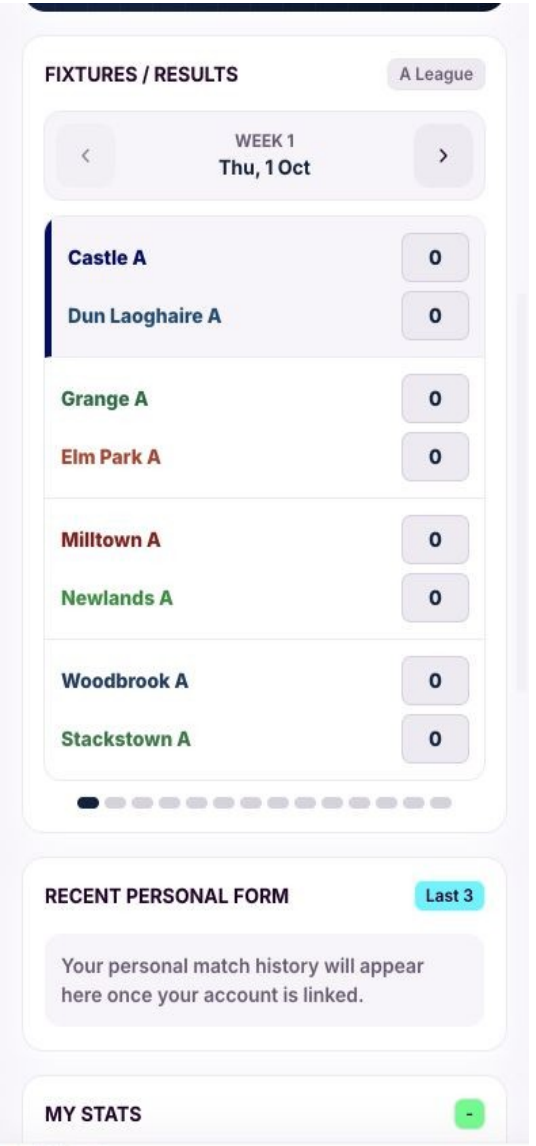

The home page changes depending on your role. Most players will have one role and will not need to switch. If you have more than one role, use the role selector at the top of the page.

- Players see their team, their league position, fixtures and results, personal stats and club options.
- Managers see their team view first, including the next match, squad information and scoring tools.
- Club members see club options such as bookings and competitions without interclub match tools.

Tip. When you move between bottom menu tabs, the screen should reset to the top of the selected page.

Following fixtures and results

The fixtures panel is arranged week by week. Use the arrows to move between weeks. Your team match is highlighted when it appears in the week.

Picking a team as manager

Only managers and assistant managers can pick lineups. Players can see friendlies or match details only when their team is involved, but they cannot create or edit them.

5. Go to Fixtures or the next match area on Home.
6. Open your team match.
7. Tap Pick team if the lineup has not been published.
8. Tap each slot and choose the player for that position.
9. Save draft if you are not ready. Publish lineup when it is final. A published lineup is locked.

Choosing players

The player picker is designed for mobile. Tap the position, choose the player, then continue down the list.

- In league matches, a player can only be selected once in the lineup.
- In friendlies, a player may be used more than once if needed.
- The C League format is singles in games 1, 3 and 5, with doubles in games 2 and 4.

Entering scores on match night

When both teams have published lineups, the match becomes the focus. Managers can enter results game by game. Players can view active match details but cannot edit scores.

10. Open the match from Fixtures or Home.
11. For each game, tap the winning team or player side.
12. Check the running score after each game.
13. When all games are correct, press Match Completed. After that, the match is locked.

Recording a break

Most games will not need a break recorded. If there is a break worth recording, use the break entry from the relevant game.

14. Open the active match.
15. Tap Record break on the correct game.
16. Choose the player and enter the break value.
17. Save the break. It will be linked to that player and that game.

Information available all season

The app keeps the key league information close to the home page. Players and managers can see different levels of detail, but everyone should be able to get to the main season information in one or two taps.

League tables

The Tables tab shows your league first, followed by the other leagues. Qualification positions are highlighted according to the league size.

Player stats and breaks

Player stats are season based. If a player did not play in that season, they should not appear in that season stats table. Breaks recorded against games also feed into the player record.

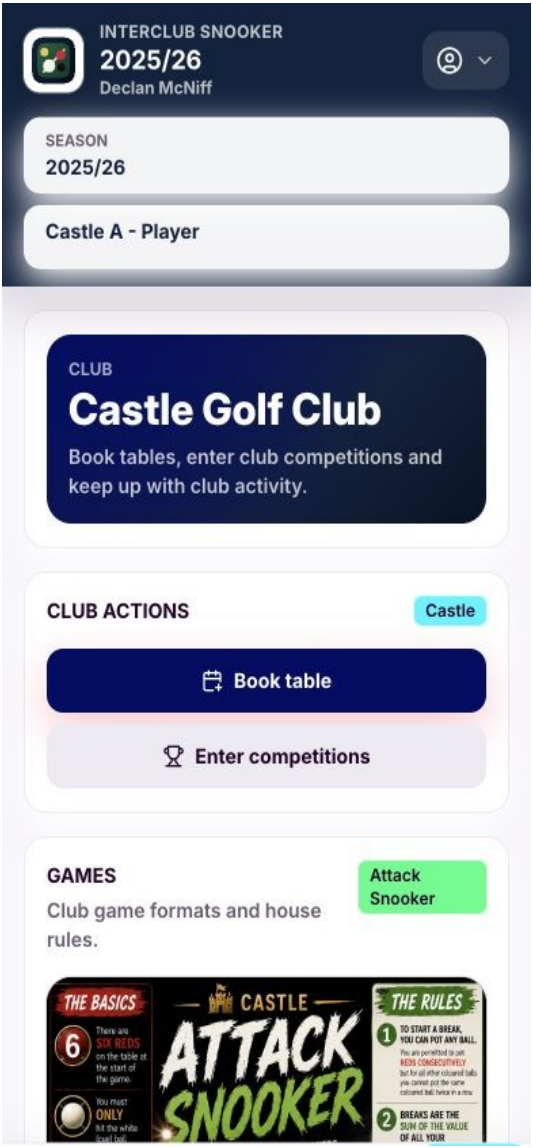

- Personal win rate, played, won and lost are shown for the selected season.
- Highest break appears when a player has a break recorded for that season.
- Doubles games count towards individual player stats for both doubles partners.

My Club

The My Club tab keeps club functionality separate from interclub duties. This is where club bookings, club competitions and club games live.

Quick checklist

When	What to check
Before match night	Confirm your role, team, fixture and selected season.
Manager before match	Pick the lineup, save draft if needed, then publish when final.
During match	Enter each game result and record any meaningful breaks.
After match	Review the score and press Match Completed when everything is correct.
Any time	Use Fixtures, Tables, My Club and stats to follow the season.

A final note

The app is built around roles. A person can be a player in one team and a manager in another. Table bookings and club competition entries are attached to the person, so they still belong to the same individual even when they switch role views.
